The myoporum insulari growing in the parkway along Pacific Coast Hwy. is really growing quite nicely. Some of the plants are quite large and congratulations are due to those homeowners who have given their plants the loving care which will do so much to enhance our area when they grow into a hedge. Some of us could spare a little more time out there to get our plants up to the standards of the neighbors. Let's keep them all alive, and soon the rainy season will come along to help. The hedge really should be even to be effective.
